CHILDREN, YOUNG PEOPLE AND FAMILIES

Our publishing seeks to shed light on the most pressing issues facing children and families today, particularly in the context of rising levels of poverty and inequality. Some of our books challenge current policy and practice via the latest research, whilst others offer straightforward practical guidance to those working with children and young people in often difficult circumstances.

Titles range from bestselling textbooks and critical monographs to peer-reviewed journals. We welcome proposals from across the field, with particular interest in work on children and young people's participation.

If you are interested in writing for our Children, Young People and Families list, please contact the Commissioning Editor for the subject area, Sarah Bird at: sarah.bird@bristol.ac.uk or visit our website to browse our authors page and to download our proposal guidelines.
