

Planning & Housing

Spring/summer 2023

Welcome

Our Planning and Housing lists aim to find equitable solutions to challenging problems and both are susceptible to constant change. Planning is vulnerable to continual government cuts which means both the systems and the profession are under immense pressure. Housing is a politically charged issue, made worse by issues such as low levels of public housing, unaffordable private housing and increases in homelessness.

We are proud of the continued growth in these two established subjects at Policy Press and the reach our books and series have internationally. The scholarship we publish looks at all available evidence to inform the creation of better homes and built environment for all – individuals and communities, in the Global North and the Global South. We are looking for writers who get to the heart of problems and can clearly communicate their expertise and research to the right audience, be they academics, students or policy makers.

If you are interested and have book or series ideas in Planning or Housing, then please do contact our editor Emily Watt: emily.watt@bristol.ac.uk

It's Not Where You Live, It's How You Live

Class and Gender Struggles in a Dublin Estate

John Bissett, community worker, activist and writer

"This brilliant, vividly written and compelling book, drawing on rich vibrant accounts of life on a Dublin housing estate, should be compulsory reading for everyone concerned about growing social class inequalities."

DIANE REAY, UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE

"Not only a deeply insightful ethnography of the lived experience of hardship and suffering among residents of a public housing estate, but a theoretically informed analysis of the economic and cultural forces that produce what they experience. I strongly recommend this book."

ANDREW SAYER, LANCASTER UNIVERSITY

This groundbreaking and compelling book takes us deep into the world of a public housing estate in Dublin, showing in fine detail the life struggles of those who live there. The book puts the emphasis on class and gender processes, revealing them to be the crucial dynamics in the lives of public housing residents. The hope is that this understanding can help change perspectives on public housing in a way that diminishes suffering and contributes to human flourishing and wellbeing.

Combining long-term research into residents' lived experience with critical realist theory, it provides a completely fresh perspective on public housing in Ireland and arguably, beyond.

The Short Guide to Town and Country Planning 2nd edition

Adam Sheppard, University of Gloucestershire, Nick Croft, University of the West of England and Nick Smith, planning consultant

The fully updated Short Guide to Town and Country Planning provides an concise introductory overview of the practice of planning for those with little or no prior knowledge. This second edition considers who planners are and what they do, showing how planning – as an art, science and system – has evolved as an organised action of the state.

The book discusses the planning system, processes, legal constructs and approaches, taking into account the significant recent changes within the UK nations. Restructured to improve readability, it explores the interactions of government and society with the planning system, and the relationship between urban planning, the environment, and placemaking. It encourages the reader to adopt a reflective and inquisitive outlook, and features:

New features include:

- case study boxes;
- further reading and resources;
- guidance on the recent policy and system updates, including those through devolution.

The New Urban Ruins

Vacancy, Urban Politics, and International Experiments in the Post-Crisis City

Edited by Cian O'Callaghan, Trinity College Dublin and Cesare Di Feliciano, University of Leicester

"Challenges understandings of urban vacancy to expose its complexities, its vibrant politics and possibilities. It will be a key resource for urbanists, especially as they address cities' emergence from COVID-19."

PAULINE MCGUIRK, UNIVERSITY OF WOLLONGONG

This book provides an innovative perspective to consider contemporary urban challenges through the lens of urban vacancy. The contributors develop new empirical insights that rethink ruination, urban development and political contestation over the reuse of vacant spaces in post-crisis cities across the globe.

Bringing Home the Housing Crisis

Politics, Precarity and Domicide in Austerity London

Mel Nowicki, Oxford Brookes University

Often portrayed as an apolitical space, this book demonstrates that home is in fact a highly political concept. This book explores the legislative changes dismantling vulnerable groups' rights to decent and affordable housing.

"A significant and urgently needed study. The authors do a brilliant job of getting under the skin of the rural idyll and revealing the extent of rural poverty in Britain today."

SARAH NEAL, UNIVERSITY OF SHEFFIELD

Many people living in rural areas face hardship but the UK's welfare system is poorly adapted to meet their needs, with the COVID-19 pandemic, Brexit and cutbacks exacerbating pressures. This book combines person-based and place-based approaches to tackling rural poverty.

Rejecting the assumption that housing and cities are separate from nature, David Clapham advances a new research framework that integrates housing with the rest of the natural world. Demonstrating the impact of housing on the non-human environment, the book considers the future direction of inhabitation policies on climate change and biodiversity.

Planning the Neighbourhood

Knowledge, Care, Legitimacy

Andy Yuille, Lancaster University

The past three decades have seen an international 'turn to participation' – letting those who will be affected by neighbourhood planning outcomes play an active role in decision making. This innovative analysis brings theory, research and practice together and gives insights into how and why citizen voices either become effective or get excluded.

Private Renting in the Advanced Economies

Growth and Change in a Financialized World

Edited by Peter A. Kemp, University of Oxford

The private rental housing market plays an important role in the advanced economies, providing accommodation for a wide range of households as well as a key asset class for private individuals and companies.

This edited collection analyses recent changes in the private rental market, using case studies from the UK, Europe, Australia and the USA, and assesses the initial impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Peer-reviewed books and journals tackling global social challenges.

This new platform offers you instant access to Bristol University Press and Policy Press digital content: ebooks, journal articles and collections from across the social sciences, including the new, non-profit, Open Access (OA) Global Social Challenges Journal.

Bristol University Press Digital, launched in Spring 2022, has been developed as part of our mission to publish research that tackles the biggest problems facing the world today.

The platform provides users with e-collections in the social sciences, uniquely curated and themed around the global social challenges and the UN's Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), enabling scholarly communities and practitioners with crucial insights to effect positive change in the world.

Benefits for academics, researchers and libraries include:

- 1,500+ books, 18 journals and 90 OA titles, all tagged and searchable by global social challenges;
- Access to our innovative new OA Global Social Challenges Journal, which breaks down boundaries to participation in, and access to, truly global social science research;
- An innovative tagging system, saving libraries time and resource in collating content and maintaining collection relevance to rapidly evolving themes;
- Maximum discoverability of our authors' work across books and journals;
- An intuitive and easy-to-use solution for both readers and librarians;
- Key industry standards for accessibility (WAGC 2.0) and reporting (COUNTER-compliant statistics).

Bristol University Press Digital is revolutionising the way scholarly communities search, experience and share content by connecting you with research that addresses the global social challenges.

Global Social Challenges Journal

NON-PROFIT, OPEN ACCESS
PUBLISHING FOR CHANGE

NOW ONLINE

Bristol University Press is delighted to announce our new fully Open Access journal.

"I'm proud to see Bristol University Press launching this important new journal, which promises to address the most urgent complexities of global social challenges by drawing together accessible international scholarship across the disciplines to inform policy and practice."

PROFESSOR JUDITH SQUIRES, DEPUTY VICE-CHANCELLOR AND PROVOST, UNIVERSITY OF BRISTOL

How can we reimagine society in an era of climate change, pandemic, hunger, poverty, questions of racial, ethnic and gender justice and other pressing global societal challenges? Significant threats and dangers lie ahead of us, but so do opportunities, as new ways of being, thinking and doing emerge. This new, fully Open Access journal aims to facilitate thinking about these positive new trajectories and to become the journal of choice to address the complexities of global social challenges across disciplines and fields.

It is the first such journal to be based in the social sciences while also engaging with research from humanities, arts and STEM. Including marginalised, minority and indigenous world views, the journal will be an important home for research that contributes to the creation of alternative futures that acknowledge past injustices and are socially and environmentally just and sustaining.
